THIS A BIG FEATURE OF RECENT TRAFFIC AGREEMENT.

Freight Rates Will Not Be Cut, but Fast Service Will Be Installed—Tourist Tickets Will Be Sold and Mexico Advertised.

Through the traffic agreement entered into recently at San Antonio between traffic officials of the Gould lines and representatives of the National lines of México, passenger rates into Mexico from any point reached by the Gould lines will be proportionally the same as present rates to California while the stopover previleges and duration of tickets will be identical. The Gould lines will inaugurate the same system of twice a week special excursions which now prevails to the west and will assist in advertising Mexico by sending down its corps of literary workers who will issue brochures and pamphlets similar to those which aided so powerfully in turning the tide of tourist travel towards California. As a part of the agreement the Gould people will cooperate with the National road of Mexico in establishing a fast freight schedule which will reduce the time between St. Louis and Mexico City to eight days as against fourteen at present. Part of the agreement already has been realized in the operation of the fast passenger service between Mexico City and the border and the balance will go into effect as soon as final arrangements can be made.

By this commingling of interests on the part of the two great systems interested, Mexico will benefit to an extent never made possible before by an railroad alliance. Being on a par with California in the matter of rates and special tourist privileges and advertized by the combined literary bureaux of both the Gould lines and the National lines, tourist travel to Mexico will be popularized as was California travel years ago. As part of the general consequences likely to result, the various excursion companies heretofore having a monopoly of tourist trade - Mexico probably will see a great diminution of their patrons for the reason that their itinerary usually is so short as to afford but little time for genuine sight-seeing. The plan of selling long term tickets with privileges of stopover at all important points will appeal to those who wish to see Mexico without being rushed so that pleasure is impossible, and it is not improbable that a greater number will elect to travel by themselves than will join an excursion party which stays barely a day in one place.

IN GOOD WORKING ORDER.

New National Hospital at San Luis One of the Best on the System.

The new National railway hospital at San Luis Potosí, which was dedicated in readiness to receive sick or injured to the fullest capacity of the hospital. A number of patients are already being treated. The grounds are being embellished with walks and flowers so that the hospital will soon be in the center of a most beautiful garden.

The building is a stone structure and is surrounded by an extensive tract of land that is being enclosed with a high stone wall. The sodding and the planting of the flowers is going on at present. The grounds have been laid out in a most attractive form with the walks and drives winding around amongst the flower-beds and fountains. This makes an ideal place for a patient to recuperate.

The hospital is very well equipped to handle all kinds of sickness as well as having an up-to-date surgical department. The hospital is in charge of an experienced nurse, a graduate of one of the best schools, and she is given an assistant who is also a graduate.

The building is arranged so that there are separate wards. One ward is set apart for the use of the American patients and the other for the Mexican. Both are furnished with every convenience that could be of any use to a suffering patient. The operating room is so constructed that it receives the maximum amount of light. The ceiling and two of the walls are of glass. The most modern surgical apparatus has been installed which, in the skilled hands of the doctor in charge, give the railroad men of the National the advantage of the best attention possible.

The hospital has a capacity which will accommodate fifty persons at one time. This capacity could be greatly increased in case of need.

The hospital is located near the shops and only a few hundred yards from the depot and adds a general appearance of modernity to the surroundings. The building cost in the neighborhood of $50,000 ,while the equipment cost $15,000.

At present there are only about ten men in the hospital for treatment, most of these being there for slight injuries. Many of the patients do not stay at the hospital but come each day for treatment.

O. R. C. NOTES.

—Look out for a list of the business houses which are to give prizes to be competed for at the O. R. C. picnic.

—A. J. Kirsting and Frank Hall of Irapuato are coming.

—P. L. Cooley and H. H. Greenleaf are entered for the broad jump contest.

—The official program is going to be a thing of beauty and all representative business houses are to be in evidence.

—Frank Ralph has concluded to remain over and take in the O. R. C. picnic.

—C. F. Cox is in town and will take part in the fat man's race.

—John Stamm writes that the greased pig contest is uppermost on his mind.

—Captain F. P. Nece, that good and true standby, is training for the 100-yard dash.

—A $50 purse has been hung up and the two crack baseball clubs will surely put up a good game.

WILL EXTEND FROM PAPASQUIARO TO SAN ANDRES.

Its Construction Will Afford Means for Mining Company at Latter Place to Place Its Ores on the Tracks of the International.

Charles Brock, a San Francisco surveyor who is in the city on business, reports that a railroad will very likely be built in the near future between Santiago Papasquiaro, a station on the Tepehuanes branch of the International, and San Andres in the state of Durango. The proposed road will open up a very rich mining district whose output has been greatly limited owing to the lack of transportation facilities. The district between the two points that the road will connect, is very mountainous and the building of the road will be a land mark in the engineering records of the country.

The road is being backed by American capital along with some Spanish capital from the San Andres Mining company. The change in the currency has stimulated the idea and surveyors are now at work going the country between the two points to select the best route for the line. The approximate cost of the route is being figured and will soon be in denite for for submissal to the backers of the enterprise.

The road will connect with the International at Santiago Papasquiaro offering an outlet for the products of the region which will be covered by the new line. The San Andres region is one of the richest silver propositions in the republic and, it is being exploited on a large scale, even now, when all the product of the mines have to be carted across the mountains. With the building of the road many other mines will naturally be opened from the fact that ore that can not be handled now could then be handled owing to the reduction in transportation expenses. Besides the enormous tonnage that the road would receive in ore would furnish an outlet to a rich timber region. Nearly the entire right of way will have to be cut through dense forests of valuable timber which will open a new industry in the section as well as adding to the earnings of the line.

Around San Andres is located a very favorable country for cattle raising. The industry at present is being conducted on a small scale owing to the fact that there is no way to ship stock consequently the farmers of that section do not raise many more cattle than they need for their own use. There is very little question as to the fact that the road will be a paying proposition when once built but the building of it is going to be a herculean task. The region through which the road will have to be built contains some of the most abrupt ascents and decents in Mexico which will make the construction difficult costly. Despite the difficulties that are to be encountered in the judgment of Mr. Brock, the road will be built.

JOHN E. GREEN, RAILROAD PREACHER OF HOUSTON, MAY VISIT MEXICO CITY

Rev. John E. Green, formerly an engineer on the Southern Pacific railroad between Houston and New Orleans, but now known as one of the ablest evangelists in the state of Texas, may come to Mexico City to assist the local Protestant ministers in their revival services next month. Evangelist Green is now conducting a series of revival services at Monterey and Torreon and it is not improbable that he will be here to take part in the coming protracted meeting. He is pastor of the McKee street Methodist church at Houston, Texas, but the major portion of his time is devoted to evangelistic work, in which he has had signal sucess, especially among railroad men, to whom he speaks in terms which they understand.

Rev. Mr. Green went from the cab to the pulpit without any intermediate steps and his later work has shown it to have been a wise move. Like Sam Jones, Dwigut Moody and others, Mr. Green impresses his audience and holds their attention by apt illustrations and remarks taken from everyday life, but, unlike those evangelists, his discourse never descends to reprehensible remarks such as have been credited to the former. Nor does Mr. Green attempt oratorical perorations except when his subject matter has progressed to where a climax is needed and then the words flow so easily and calmly that his audience is carried with him. Mr. Green is eminently well qualified to preach to railroad men and of the membership composing his congregation at Houston fully two-thirds of them are conductors, brakemen and engineers.

FISHERMAN'S BODY IN ICE.

Found by Sailor After Being Undisturbed for Five Years.

Had Ole Sjostron's tomb of ice on an Arctic island in the Behring sea remained undisturbed 100,000 years, at the end of that ponderous stretch of time the face and form of old Ole would have looked as natural and lifelike at the moment of the fisherman's death.

Five years ago this young Norwegian, Sjostron, disappeared from Baranoff station. Nobody knew what became of him, and finally people ceased to wonder. A few weeks ago the body was found completely imbedded in the ice and so thoroughly preserved that not even the slightest indication of change had set in.

The barening City of Papeet has arrived from Baranoff, and the news of this remarkable discovery was brought by her first mate, Knute Peterson.

"Five years in the ice," said Peterson, "has not made a bit of difference in his appearance. When they found him, he looked as though asleep, but sure enough, he was cold in death—even more so than the ordinary dead man. They suppose that he lay down on the glacier while intoxicated and fell asleep, and that after he had frozen to death the ice formed over him."

Strange as this story may seem, the incident is not strange to those who know the Arctic ice fields. Bodies of the mammoth have been found similarly imbedded in the ice.

The sailor's information about the finding of Sjostron's body is meager, but it is presumable that instead of being caught and imprisoned in the glacial ice the fisherman died on the soft soil of the tundra and that his body became covered up and frozen with it.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Carnegie's Latest Purchase.

Andrew Carnegie's latest purchase, Lee park, in the South of England, is the place on which the late Whitaker Wright squandered millions when he was in the height of his speculative glory. It was his hobby during his years of opulence and is regarded as one of the most magnificent modern houses in the world. This may be credited when it remembered that the purchase price to Mr. Carnegie is $3,750,000. The house has many suites of reception rooms, a splendid palm garden and a ball room capable of accomodating several hundred persons. At the top of the house is an observatory containing one of the largest telescopes in England. The gardens cost even more money than the house and are adorned with statues, pagodas, summer houses and every device of the landscape gardener's art. It is Mr Carnegie's intention to turn the place into a national convalescent home, for which purposes it is admirably fitted.

HELEN KELLER'S FIRST DANCE.

After Hard School Work She Is Enjoying Southern Home Life.

Helen Keller, the famous blind and deaf girl, whose achievements are the wonder of the civilized world, is at the home of her mother, in this city, where she came for a complete rest of several months. In a pretty cottage, surrounded by a blue-grass lawn and handsome oak trees, she will renew the home ties which were interrupted 15 years ago, when she commenced acquiring, under the guidance of Miss Sullivan, the wonderful amount of knowledge she possesses.

Miss Keller arrived the week before Christmas to spend the first Christmas in twelve years with her mother, her sister Mildred and her little brother, Phillips. Helen was very gay during the holidays, and, for the first time, she exchanged the habits of a student and hard worker for those of a society butterfly. Up to this time she had never danced, except with girls at school, and great was her delight when, the night after Christmas, she attended her first real ball and danced like the other girls. Miss Keller is a graceful dancer, and as she glided around the room, keeping perfect time to the music, it was hard to realize that to her all was darkness and silence, and that her movements were not inspired to the strains of the orchestra.

She was especially interested in the German given by the "Rosebuds," the set to which her younger sister belongs, and was one of the busiest at making the favors.

Miss Keller is always accessible to her friends, and nothing gives her more pleasure than to meet those whom she knew in her early days. Her marvelous memory is frequently demonstrated by remarks she makes when people are presented to her. Though she has been far from her native home for the past 15 years, except for brief visits at rare intervals, she is familiar with the minutest incidents of Alabama history, both ancient and modern, and with its literature as well.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

Waffles, Eggs and Matrimony.

At the next meetings of the various women's clubs it might be advisable to take up the intersting case of Miss Alice Sanborn and Miss Elizabeth Donohue, who have secured husbands, the first by the charming manner in which she made waffles and the second by the gracious way in which she fried eggs. We realize that there are more serious problems in the emancipation of true womanhood than the construction of waffles and the frying of eggs, and yet these are the details of life not to be utterly despised and neglected. If Alice and Elizabeth had not been at the gas stove when Eugene and Harry called, but had been down at the club reading papers on the true obligations of the home, it may be that the double wedding would not have been celebrated and four gladsome hearts would have beaten merrily as two. A carefully fried egg and a neatly turned waffle will make more progress in the esteem and affection of a warm-hearted, sympathetic man than twenty essays of the pen-and-ink description. This is though it should not be so.—Chicago Post.

WHAT IS A GOOD SCHOOL?

It is one where all the teachers have been thoroughly trained for the work, where the discipline is good, the order as near perfect as possible, the school and classes properly graded. In addition to this there should be plenty of play grounds, a good recreation hall and a thorough school spirit. All these requisites are to be found in the Mexico City Grammar and High School. This college carries pupils from the kindergarten through the Primary and High Schools to the University. It also contains a thorough school and military department. For information address the director, Prof. J. H. CORNYN, B. A., LL. B., BE., 2a. Industria 15, Mexico City.
