

READY FOR STOCK SHOW

OPENS AT COYOACAN THIS MORNING AT 11 O'CLOCK. EXHIBITS TO BE VARIED

In Addition to Fine Breeds of Cattle There Will Be Various Kinds of Domestic Animals—Special Cars Leave the Zocalo This Morning.

The fourteenth annual Coyoacan cattle exhibit will open this morning under most favorable auspices.

The program as arranged for the opening of the exposition, and published in The Herald yesterday morning, has drawn the general attention of the public to the show, especially in view of the fact that the president of the republic has consented to attend and preside at the inauguration.

Through more attention is apparently paid by the breeders themselves to the exhibition of cattle than to any other department, the general public is also interested in the other live stock departments, especially domestic animals, poultry, etc., and for this reason these departments have never been neglected at past exhibitions.

Among the Americans expected to attend the exposition, in addition to C. A. Stannard, of the American Hereford Cattle Breeders' association, and Senator Harris, of the American Shorthorn Breeders' association, may be mentioned B. O. Cowan, of Chicago; H. E. Brown, of Minneapolis; S. F. Lockridge, of Green City, Indiana; I. M. Forbes, of Henry, Illinois; C. E. Leonard, of Booneville, Mo.; and other cattlemen prominent in the two national breeders' associations of the United States.

Special street cars will leave the Zocalo at 10:10 o'clock this morning, and they are due to arrive at the exposition grounds in Coyoacan before the opening ceremony at 11 o'clock.

As announced yesterday morning this ceremony will be presided over by President Diaz, the opening address will be delivered by Ing. Geronimo Lopez de Yergo, and musical selections will be rendered at regular intervals by the Police band.

ALDRICH SEES NO CLOUD IN MEXICO'S FINANCIAL SKY

E. B. Aldrich, of New York, the president of the Continental Rubber company, who has just returned from an inspection of the company's properties in Torreon, and who is in close touch with business conditions in the republic, in speaking last night at the Palace of the excited financial conditions now prevailing in the United States and other countries, said:

"There is no doubt but that the money markets of the world are in a very excitable condition as a result of the decline in security values in the United States, and while every business enterprise would do well to adopt precautionary measures to safeguard their interests, so far as Mexico is concerned I do not anticipate any serious decline in the shares or securities of her various enterprises. The sound conservative policy of the government along financial lines has been more or less followed by the business man in his enterprises of private or quasi-public character and I would be very much surprised if the flurry in the United States produces more than a passing impression upon the securities of this country."

DIES OF TYPHOID FEVER

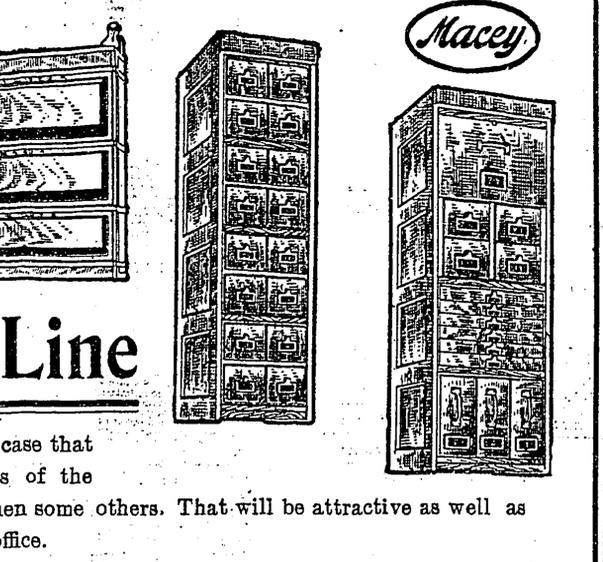

Geoffrey Penny Came to Mexico Only a Month Ago.

Geoffrey Penny, brother of R. N. and F. H. Penny, of Mexico City, died yesterday morning of typhoid fever at Aire Libre, Puebla, after an illness of several weeks' duration. The news of his death, due to complications which developed several days ago, was conveyed in a telegram to Mrs. R. N. Penny, and, though no details of his death and the funeral arrangements have been learned as yet in this city, it is probable that he will be buried at the place of his demise.

The deceased was about thirty years old and had been in this country only a month, arriving at the port of Veracruz September 15. The home of his family is at Frome, Somerset, England, but previous to his coming to this country he had been in Natal, South Africa. He had a promising future, and came to accept a position with the Teztlutlan Copper company, of Teztlutlan, Puebla.

It is thought that the young man contracted the fever at Tampico, where his vessel, a Leyland steamer en route from Southampton to Veracruz, stopped for three days. He leaves a wife and two brothers, who were with him at the time of his death. One of his brothers is Professor R. N. Penny, of the University school, who has been in Mexico seven years, and the other is F. H. Penny, who has been in the country about one year.

DOES NOT AFFECT SUGAR

MONEY TROUBLES WON'T HURT CONSUMPTION OF SWEETS.

PINEAPPLES BEING SHIPPED

New Industry in Hawaii Helping Sugar Trade—Mexican Isthmus Route Is Most Important in the Handling of Hawaii's Product.

R. C. Ewart, of Honolulu, a sugar planter with large interests in the Hawaiian Islands, who is now in the city, says that conditions in the islands are extremely good and he does not anticipate any material changes in those conditions as a result of the tightness in the world's money centers.

"Financial conditions may to a greater or less degree affect the erection of plants and the going forward of projected improvements," he said, "but it is unlikely to affect the consumption or the production of sugar or the price of this year's crop. The demand for sugar is good and we are all busy supplying that demand."

The sugar industry is practically the only industry of importance on the islands, according to Mr. Ewart. He says the growing and shipping of pineapples has of late years increased until it may properly be called an industry, but that it is not yet a competitor of sugar. Both the fresh fruit and the canned fruit are shipped to the United States, principally to San Francisco, where it finds a ready market on account of its superior qualities.

"The bulk of the sugar raised in the Hawaiian Islands," Mr. Ewart added, "is refined on the ground and shipped to New York, although something like one-third of the production is shipped to San Francisco. Formerly this sugar was shipped around the Horn, but now we are getting the benefit of the Tehuantepec National railway, and the sugar is shipped from Honolulu by the American Hawaiian Steamship company, to Salina Cruz and via the Tehuantepec National to Coahuacalcos, and from there to New York. The benefit derived by the opening of the Mexican isthmus route has been widespread and greatly lessens the haul of our products."

Mr. Ewart stated that he was very much interested in the possibilities of Mexico as a sugar-raising country and had personally visited the state of Chiapas, where he found soil especially well adapted to the growing of sugar. The state of Morelos, he said, should produce as fine a quality of sugar as any part of the world. When questioned relative to the experiments with rubber cultivation which had been made in Hawaii in the past three years, Mr. Ewart said:

"There are now four rubber companies organized and which have trees planted. These are located at various points of the islands, and all have done more or less work, though no rubber has as yet been secured."

The labor employed on the islands, according to Mr. Ewart, is not of the best. Chinese, Koreans, Japanese, Filipinos and Portuguese are all used with indifferent success. The Portuguese and the Chinese in the order named are the most desirable, as they are more reliable than the others.

The sugar crop of the Hawaiian Islands this year, Mr. Ewart stated, would be about 400,000 tons, and while not a record crop, is better than the average.
